Soccer Superstars

FIFA※ honored Sawa Homare, captain of Japan's women's soccer team, on January 9 by naming her the world's best female player of 2011. Sawa impressed FIFA by becoming the top scorer at the World Cup ( 31 ) summer in Germany and being named the tournament's most valuable player, as well as by her contribution to Japan's first-ever World Cup ( 32 ).

At the ceremony, Sawa, 33, stood out ( 33 ) her blue kimono featuring a bold floral pattern. "It's through the help of people associated ( 34 ) women's soccer that I've been able to win this award. I would like to make this award a source of motivation in ( 35 ) devotion to the sport," she told the audience.

Her face maintained a rigid expression even ( 36 ) her name was read out. "When Coach Sasaki's name was called out, I was really ( 37 ). When my own name was called, I really didn't know ( 38 ) was going on," she explained. Afterwards, Sawa smiled while posing for photos with Lionel Messi, an Argentinean who took FIFA's best male player ( 39 ) for the third-straight year.

Sawa's award ( 40 ) 19 years after she first joined Japan's squad at the age of 15. "I was overjoyed that I could give children the dream that Japanese players become world champions," she said.
